Foreword

It is most fitting that we should use the student mind as our theme since the function of the school is the discipline of the thoughts of that mind. However, you cannot grasp a thought in your hand or portray every type of the mind and, much less, illustrate it in a book. The mind and its thoughts are intangible. You can neither see nor feel them, yet they condition the whole life.

The student mind is not just one type of mind; it is a host of minds with different thoughts which progress with age, expand with interests, and adapt themselves to conditions. Each one started with basic differences, reacted to different experiences, and concluded with different ideas. And yet we have attempted to group them and give you the opportunity to view the daily life of school through the mind of the student.

Dedication

It is most fitting and proper that we should dedicate this book to CONFIDENCE IN YOUTH because we are the youth on the threshold of life. The youth of today was brought up in the shadow of a war and in a time of divorce, desire, and domestic disintegration. Insecurity? Yes, but also responsibility. The youth today are more than ever ready to pick up the loose strings of the world and lead it on to a more successful future, to a pacified world with universal fellowship. However, the youth need encouragement, confidence, and understanding in return for youthful vigor and enthusiasm to get things done with capable leadership. With CONFIDENCE IN YOUTH there will not be a sudden transformation of the problems of the world but insurance for future living.

We, of the Yearbook Staff, devote this small space to express our deep appreciation for the assistance we have had in its preparation from various faculty members: to Mr. Crouse, not only for the pictures, but for the time and patience that was behind the actual photography and development; to Miss Snyder for the planning and supervision of the book's art work; to Mrs. Mowry and Mrs. Baker for their helpful criticism; and especially to Mrs. Duffy, without whose guidance and assistance the excellence of the book could not have been attained.

Administration

REGINALD W. CROUSE

Principal

One of the chief responsibilities of a school is to train students to think for themselves. This responsibility has never been more vital than at present, because of the threats to our democratic way of life. We must not be misled by propagandists who try to sway us with mass psychology or by those who would lead us to give up our liberties with promises of security.

The greatest protection we have against un-American ideologies is a people trained to think before accepting what they read or hear. I hope that this school is doing its part in training citizens equipped to accept their responsibilities.

Reginald W. Crouse

MARION EDWARDS

The students of Leavenworth Central meet Miss Marion Edwards' smile and pleasant efficiency as school secretary in the main office and as the cashier in the cafeteria. Marion has learned to drive this year and now provides her own transportation to and from her home in North Rose.

Custodians

For fifteen years, we, the students of Leavenworth Central School, have received the benefits of an excellent custodian staff which has seen to it that the 365 tons of coal per year are burned to keep a comfortable and healthful temperature in the building; that the halls and rooms are clean and polished; that the lawns are mowed or walks shoveled; and that the gym and auditorium are cleaned after our games and dances.

The present custodian staff at L.C.S. includes Isaac Shippers, who takes care of the upper floor; Martin Powell, who does the first floor; and Ross Loveless and Raymond Shippers, who do the other floors and work wherever needed.

These are the men to whom we owe the neat, new appearance which our school retains though used by about 800 students every year. If, however, we are to give credit where credit is due, there is a name missing. The head of the janitors is Ralph Countryman, who has been plain "Obie" for years; who loves to refuse violently "to do it" and denounce everything from the government on down when the students ask a favor of him, and then goes ahead to do it exactly in the way the students want it, with a little touch of extra time and work, bettering what the students had in mind.

To our custodians, and especially to "Obie," we can say only, "Thanks a million."

"Tune in Tonite," a three act farce about the inner workings of an unusual radio station was presented by the Class of 1950. The cast included lovers, evangelists, a gangster, a money-mad landlady, and an F.B.I. man. The play revolves around a fortune of gold. At the last curtain, the entire action turns out to be a program of the radio station. Both audience and cast enjoyed this play, and the receipts carried the seniors a few more miles toward Washington.

Confessions Of The Seniors

The Class of 1950, fifty-one strong, entered upon its high school career with a stormy class meeting in September of 1946, at which Mrs. Duffy prophesied that the class would amount to little if it didn't change its ways. Obviously, history has proved her wrong!

The novices of 1946 found themselves in a strange new world where someone was always scolding them for being in the wrong room. The year was enlivened by a rousing "vic" dance, whose profits crowded one dollar. After this new high in low profit, it was decided that this was the "vic" dance to end all "vic" dances.

In the sophomore year the class was beginning to make itself heard; some of its members have not shut up yet. Sports, music, and sitting in the office were activities in which sophomores became outstanding. A turkey raffle was the main money-making project of the year; it was not exactly a riotous success.

As juniors, the class started preparations for their role as seniors. Juniors participated in the senior play, helped on the yearbook, and sold cards and hot dogs. The Junior Prom was ruled over by Jack Stuck and Anne Wirth. On a visit to the New York State Freedom Train we learned about slavery from Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Duffy, who strong-armed the class by sheer lung power.

After three years of toil and struggle, the triumphant Class of 1950 entered its final year at L.C.S., forty-seven strong. Plans were made to earn fabulous sums for a trip to Washington. A highly successful magazine campaign was conducted, topping last year's record. Further designs upon the public purse were in the form of bake sales and the sale of refreshments at the school fair and at games.

One of the year's most enjoyable events was the senior play where erasers flew thick as flies and the seniors furthered their wicked reputation. However, the play was a success, despite repeated tremblings of the scenery and stumblings of the cast, who never seemed eager to break up their visits with "mother" outside. One was particularly attentive to her mother, who turned out to have a crew cut and drive a shiny convertible.

The Senior Ball proved less raucous, but highly profitable. The members of Ken Myer's band chose Alice Wirth and Milt Wadsworth for king and queen.

After midyears, it became apparent to seniors that they were not overloaded with greenbacks, and Hamilton, Jackson, and Lincoln became more than names missed on a history test. So the seniors set out further to deplete the pocketbooks of Wolcott by a dinner, circus, and picture sale.

Broken dishes, slippery floors, and crumby seniors marked the money-making Rotary dinner. Next was Cole's Circus, at which the seniors could be distinguished from the animals only because they were taking tickets at the door. Time and space do not permit mentioning the sale of Christmas cards and stationery, and our dying gasp as photo sellers.

Despite their efforts to make money, the seniors took in a vast store of moral advice. Never to be forgotten are Mr. Terry's terrorizing tales to nicotine addicts, Mr. Crouse's warnings to the wayward senior who whistled at a cheerleader in shorts, or Mrs. Baker's frantic yelps when deluged by seniors' questions.

These are the things we remember. Yet to come are the senior trip, class night, and graduation. And we somehow feel that, in the customary tradition of our class, these also will be loused up.

In its fourth year at L.C.S., the annual school fair has topped its own previous records for attendance, exhibits, and enjoyment. As a climax to days of preparation by the Agriculture boys and the Homemaking girls, under the direction of Mr. Fisk and Miss Migliore, a parade opened the school fair on Friday, October seventh. Hundreds of exhibits ranging in size from plums to horses were displayed, including all sorts of fruits and vegetables raised by Leavenworth students. Money flowed freely into class coffers for refreshments, and by the reaction of the huge crowd to the exhibits and events, the school fair has again set a record which will be hard to excel.

Reginald W. (Central School) announces that the school will open in their classrooms at 1 p. m. on that day. A special faculty meeting will be held at 9 a. m. on opening day.

Buses will leave Wolcott at 11:45 a. m. Tuesday, Sept. 6, and will return the youngsters home in the afternoon at 3 and 4 o'clock. Thereafter, the buses will operate on their regular schedule, leaving school at 7:30 and 8:20 a. m. and making the return trip at 3 and 4 p. m.

The school principal will be in the office on Thursday and Friday afternoons, Sept. 1 and 2, for the purpose of registering students and adjusting schedules.

The additional supply has enabled the Sodus Creamery Corp. to resume regular operations at its local plant. Last week it had shipped its milk supplies to Canastota for processing.

Best hope for permanent solution of water problem remains in the early construction of the pipeline to Lake Ontario as part of the new supply system scheduled for completion late next year. Bids on laying this line are to be opened at 8 p. m. this Monday at Village Hall, and according to William Lozier Co., Rochester engineers, retained by the village, the pipeline, under favorable conditions, can be ready for operation December 1. Coach "Brad"

We compliment Coach Bradbury on producing his "Century" Soccer Team. After twenty-odd years of skillful coaching, Mr. Bradbury sent out his 1949 team to win his 100th victory. The big Blue and Gold team, though not successful in the eyes of the county, was more than successful in the eyes of the people of Wolcott. Scoring 61 points against their opponents 24, the Wolcott booters marked up seven victories and were held to two defeats and one tie.

With the "power house" battery of Kitchen, Woods, and VanHee, the Blue and Gold nine marked up six victories out of ten games in the 1949 season. Although it was not a championship season for our team, they scored the fine record of 91 runs against the opponents 77. Even though the team was not always successful, it received much recognition from its followers and its opponents.

This year Coach Bradbury, working with a small number of veterans, turned out a surprisingly aggressive team. They had an unsuccessful year, but the future looks bright with a good number of experienced players expected back next season. The team has shown great improvement since the first of the year by defeating Williamson and holding Red Creek to a score of 39 to our 37 in the most sensational game of the season.

The Junior Varsity team is expecting a brighter future also. With this year's experience and many new players coming up from Junior High, everyone is planning on seeing some real action next season. After the Marion game the team was greatly handicapped by the absence of Palmer who was put on the Varsity squad at that time. Coach Bradbury, while not expecting to lose too many Varsity men, will have no trouble filling the empty spaces from the Junior Varsity team.

Cheerleaders

VARSITY: Marilyn Miller, Betty Bailey, Anne Wirth, Esther Leaird, Marie Griffis

Of the many events that take place during the year, the students always look forward to the choosing of cheerleaders.

Two gym teachers, the homemaking teacher, dramatic teacher, Student Council adviser, and all members of the Student Council have an opportunity to choose these cheerleaders, basing their decision on co-ordination, ability and appearance.

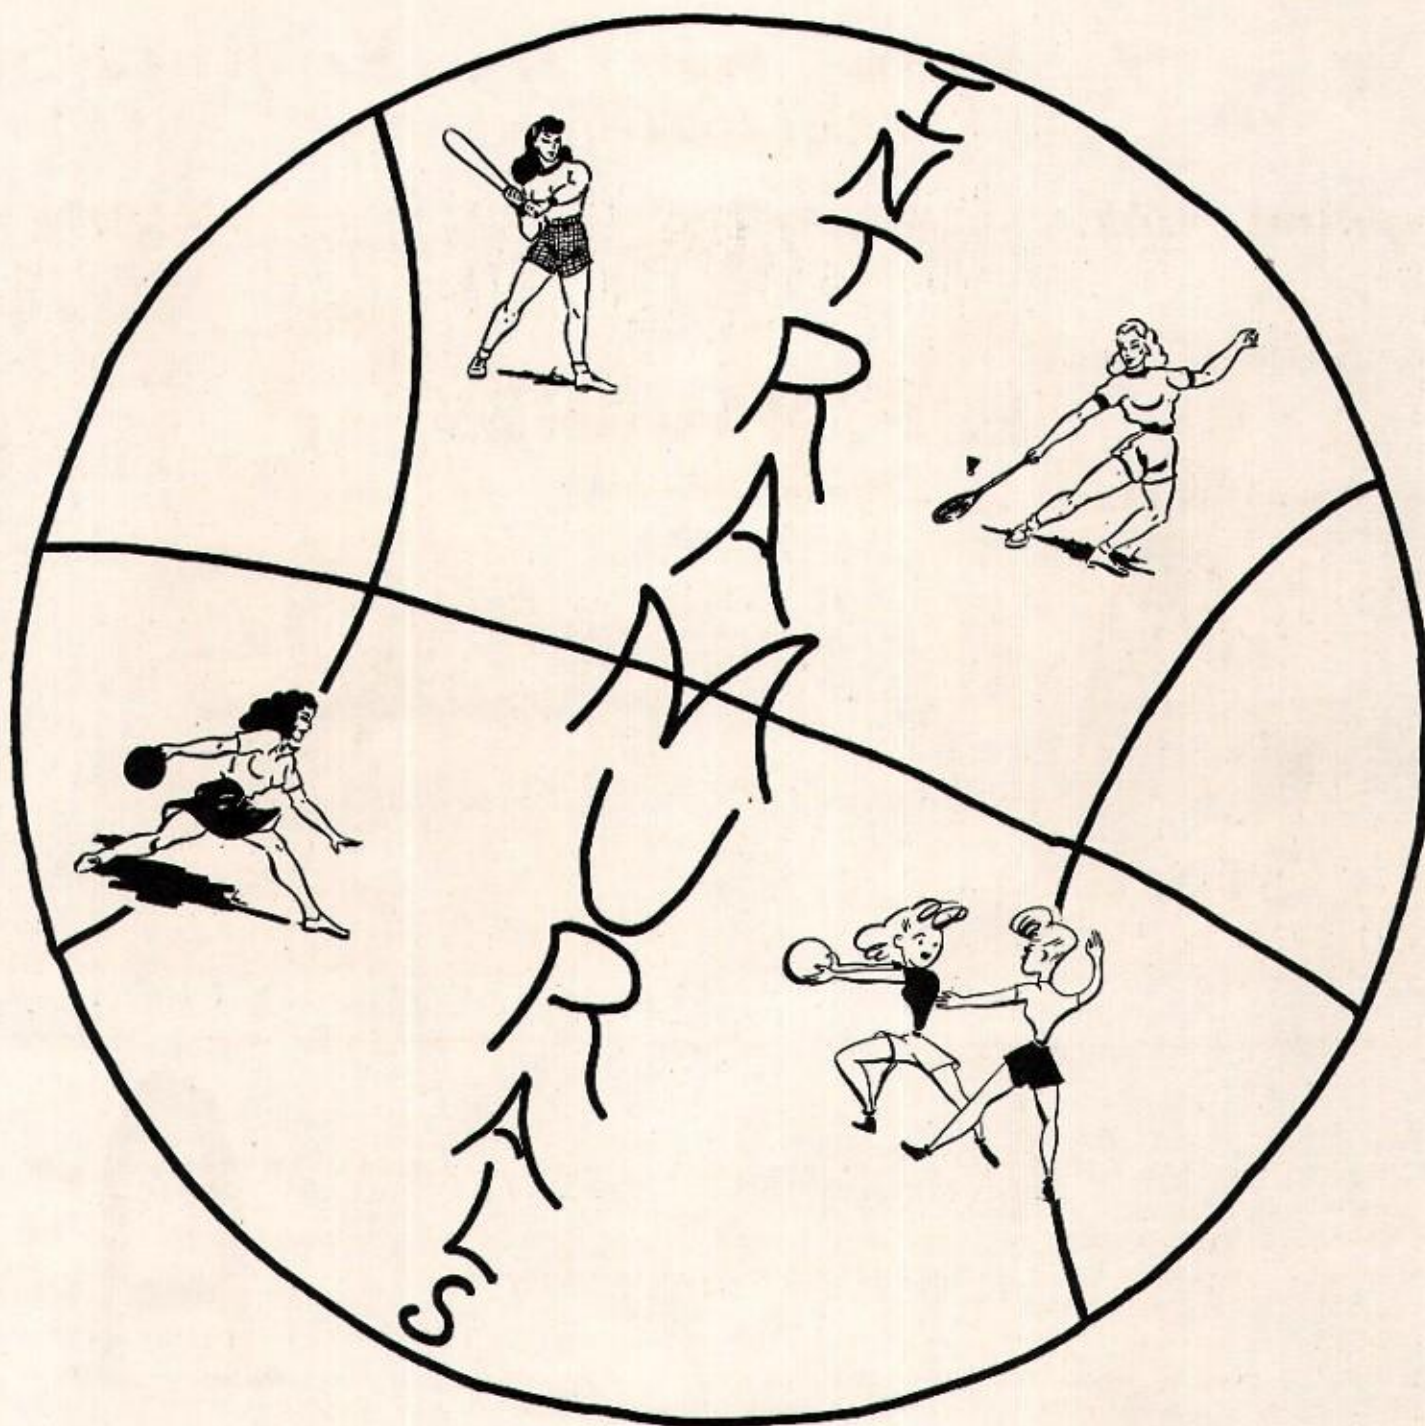

The five girls receiving the highest number of votes become the Varsity Cheerleaders. The five next highest are the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders.

The cheerleaders have accomplished many things during this school year, with Miss Hale as their adviser. These include sponsoring pep assemblies and the construction and display of up-to-date posters throughout the school to keep the pupils of L.C.S. informed when and where the next game is to be played.

Besides leading the school cheers, the purpose of the cheerleaders is to boost the morale of the team and to promote good sportsmanship.

JUNIOR VARSITY: Mildred Hatter, Nancy Doolittle, Joan Cathy, Suzanne Stell, Bertha Capron

The foundation for a Girls' Athletic Association at Leavenworth Central School is being established this year.

Associations of this type are for the betterment of girls in the field of physical education. This organization should, if properly begun, sponsored, and supported, be the sole sponsor of awards such as letters, sweaters, and pins for the girls in the school. A program of this sort takes much effort and support on the part of the participants but will be something the girls will be proud of as they represent their school in various sponsored activities.

This year the program has begun in part with the basketball season. All participants in the intramural basketball program now in process will receive a three-inch blue and gold felt "W" provided their attendance is excellent at scheduled games. The winning team in the intramural program will receive gold chenille "W's", signifying their championship playing.

Following the intramural program will be an interclass schedule. Each class will provide eight players for a team. A series of games will be played among the Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors. The two winning teams will show their skill in front of an audience at L.C.S. in February. Awards will be made to the individual members of the winning team.

Badminton, archery, tennis, softball, ping pong, and shuffle board are the main events yet to come in the line of girls' sports.

IN MEMORIAM

The yearbook staff wishes to express here the sorrow and deep regret felt by the entire school upon the untimely death of Mr. Charles Bush, school driver for the past fifteen years. When leaving his home for an emergency bus trip on March 9, Mr. Bush became involved in a collision, which occasioned his death. Hazardous driving conditions caused by prevailing snow and wind had necessitated an early school closing and the recalling of bus drivers among them Mr. Bush. The storm was at its height and visibility obscured at the time Mr. Bush was leaving his home, and as he entered the main road his car was struck almost simultaneously by vehicles approaching from both directions.

It is paradoxical that Mr. Bush should have met his death in this manner, for his zeal in caring for the safety of his young charges was outstanding--no child could leave the bus until he had given the "all clear" signal. Appreciation for his care and devotion to the children of our school will live in the hearts of many grateful parents for years to come.

IN MEMORIAM

The yearbook staff wishes to express here the sorrow and deep regret felt by the entire school upon the untimely death of Mr. Bush. He was a devoted school driver for the past fifteen years. When leaving his home for an emergency bus trip on March 9, Mr. Bush became involved in a collision which occasioned his death. His driving conditions were aggravated by prevailing snow and what had been considered an early school dismissal and the retelling of his delivery among them Mr. Bush. The storm was at its height and visibility obscured at the time Mr. Bush was leaving his home, and as he entered the main road his car was struck almost simultaneously by vehicles approaching from both directions.

It is regrettable that Mr. Bush should have met his death in this manner, for his zeal in carrying out the safety of his young charges was outstanding. No child could leave the bus until he had given the "all clear" signal. Appreciation for his care and devotion to the children of our school will live in the hearts of many grateful parents for years to come.
